RISO DEL DELTA DEL PO PGI

PRODUCT

The Po Delta Rice PGI is the cereal belonging to the Japonica type, Superfino group; its varieties are Carnaroli, Volano, Baldo, Arboreo. The Arborio, Baldo and Volano are excellent for risotto, timballo and suppli, while the Carnaroli PGI is especially recommended for fine risotto of high-quality catering.

The product is marketed as "Riso del Delta del Po IGP". It comes in a vacuum-sealed package or stored in a controlled atmosphere, in bags suitable for food use weighing 0.5, 1, 2 and 5 kg; they may be put into boxes whose size fits the weigh of the bag to prevent the product from spilling out before the package is opened.

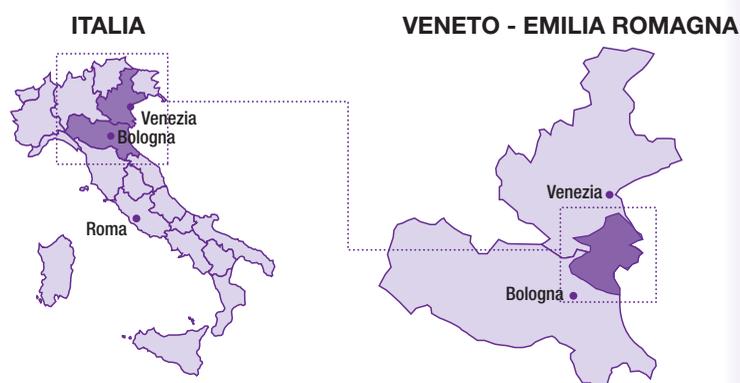

PRODUCTION ZONE

The Po Delta Rice is typically grown in the most eastern side of the Po Valley between Veneto and Emilia Romagna regions, in the territories formed by debris from the Po river and, later on, from land transformation by humans that made rice growing possible.

The Po Delta soil is especially suitable for rice growing because of the healthy sea breeze.

DENOMINATION MARK

The "Delta of Po Rice" logo is made up of an elliptical creamy-white band with an external green edge. Inside the band, there are the inscriptions "Delta of Po Rise" on the upper half and "Protected Geographical Indication" on the bottom. Within the green field of the band, on the right and left sides, there are typical figures of the Delta of Po (swamp reeds and stylised birds) creamy-white coloured, while in the center there is a stylised woman with a bundle of rise in yellow.
